Dear Governor Murphy, Senate President Sweeney, Assembly Speaker Coughlin, and Director O’Mara-Van Driesen:

On behalf of the Board of Directors I am pleased to submit the annual report of the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium (the “Consortium”) in accordance with P.L.2018, c.111 and P.L.1991, c.164.

The Consortium was formed in response to the decline and loss of local news and civic information across the state. As the Legislature declared in the bill creating the Consortium, “The people of New Jersey need accurate, relevant, timely, and trustworthy news and information to be civically engaged, make informed voting decisions, and work toward common solutions in their communities.” It is the lifeblood of democracy.

With $500,000 in funding for grants to local news and information organizations provided in the FY21 State Budget—the first such public support of local news in the United States—the board developed grant guidelines, called in March for applications, and received 74 creative and interesting proposals from nearly every county in the state. After review by a committee of the board, 14 grants of approximately $35,000 each were awarded in May, totalling some $490,000.

While it is too early in the implementation process to report on grantee progress, suffice to say that there is a lot of interest and excitement about their work, which includes plans for a Spanish language internet radio program, two new community news organizations, and several efforts to train residents and New Jersey youth in media making, among others. A common thread in this initial cohort of grantees is a clear focus on filling information gaps, and several of our grantees aim to serve some of New Jersey’s most vulnerable and marginalized people.

We are grateful for your support and that of the Legislature, as well as that of Higher Education Secretary Brian Bridges and his staff. We are especially appreciative of the additional $1 million provided to the Consortium in the FY22 State Budget. Through more robust civic discourse and engagement and the success of our grantees, we hope to develop the case for annual funding of this vital work.

Sincerely,

Christopher J. Daggett
Chairperson, Board of Directors
ABOUT THE NEW JERSEY CIVIC INFORMATION CONSORTIUM

The New Jersey Civic Information Consortium is a registered New Jersey nonprofit organization that funds initiatives to benefit the State’s civic life and meet the evolving information needs of New Jersey’s communities.

A first-in-the-nation project, the Consortium builds on the foundation laid by public media in the United States, and reimagines how public funding can be used to address the growing problem of news deserts and misinformation, and to support more informed communities. The Consortium provides grants for projects that achieve the following goals:

- Improve the quantity and quality of civic information in New Jersey communities.
- Give residents enhanced access to useful government data and public information through innovative applications, platforms, and technologies.
- Train students, professionals, and community members in the practice of community storytelling, journalism, and media production.
- Nurture better civic engagement and dialogue within and between New Jersey communities.
- Better meet the information needs of low-income communities and racial and ethnic communities that have been underserved by the media.
- Invest in research and practices that can help media outlets become more closely connected to their audiences and more sustainable without government support.

Under state law, the Consortium and the State of New Jersey do not have ownership in any project funded by a Consortium grant. In addition, under state law the State of New Jersey and the Consortium are prohibited from exercising editorial control over any project funded by the Consortium.

The state of New Jersey created the Consortium in 2018 in response to the growing local news crisis impacting communities across the state’s 21 counties. Led by the nonprofit, nonpartisan advocacy organization Free Press, a broad stakeholder coalition of thousands of residents, universities, journalists, lawmakers and more crafted the Civic Information bill as a way to fund innovative media and civic technology projects in New Jersey for decades to come.

The Consortium has its roots in a history of projects and advocacy to grow access to local news and information across New Jersey, including work by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation and the Center for Cooperative Media at Montclair State University.

The Consortium brings together five of New Jersey’s leading institutions of higher education – The College of New Jersey, Montclair State University, New Jersey Institute of Technology, Rowan University and Rutgers University – in partnership to address the lack of access to local news and information. The Consortium is eligible for funding from the State of New Jersey and can obtain funds from private foundations, individuals, and other charitable organizations. Montclair State University serves as the host university for the Consortium.

The Consortium, housed within Montclair State University, is governed by a 15-member Board of Directors, which includes representatives of the five member universities.

By bringing together these five comprehensive public universities, the Consortium can leverage the individual strengths of each university and utilize them in a unique synergy to benefit New Jersey residents. Each member university has identified its individual focus areas and will use them as part of the Consortium’s strategy to address news deserts statewide.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The New Jersey Civic Information Consortium was established in 2018 with the passage and signing of P.L.2018, c.111 (C.18A:64-94, et. seq.). A budget appropriation of $500,000 was allocated from the FY21 State Budget. Since that time, the following has been accomplished:

- Appointment of all 15 members of the Board of Directors (Appendix A).
- Monthly meetings of the Board of Directors, beginning in March 2020.
- Registration as a nonprofit organization under the NJ Nonprofit Corporation Act.
- Submission to the IRS of Form 1023, requesting tax exempt status under Section 501(c)(3).
- Submission to the NJ Division of Revenue in Treasury for exemption from state sales taxes.
- Designation of Montclair State University as the host university for the Consortium.
- Establishment of bylaws (Appendix D) and a conflict of interest policy (Appendix E).
- Conflict of interest statement signed by each board member (Appendix E).
- Election of officers of the Board of Directors (Appendix B).
- Establishment of board classes (Appendix A).
- Creation of a website, Facebook page, and Twitter account, at njcivicinfo.org, facebook.com/njcivicinfo and twitter.com/njcivicinfo
- Signing of a Grant Agreement between the Officer of the Secretary of Higher Education (OSHE) and the Consortium (Appendix C).
- Opening of a Consortium bank account (Valley Bank).
- Transfer from OSHE to the Consortium, and deposit into the Consortium bank account, of the $500,000 state appropriation.
- Conducting of a listening campaign, including 30 Zoom sessions and 188 surveys, reaching 400+ residents across New Jersey (Appendix G).
- Board of Directors approval of grant guidelines and grant application (Appendices F and H).
- Public release (March 3) of grant guidelines, call for applications, and frequently asked questions (FAQs), with March 31 deadline for submission (Appendices F and H).
• Receipt of grant applications (74, Appendix J) and selection of 14 grantees (Appendix K).
• Disbursement of nine grant checks totaling $311,787.96.
• Applications submitted to foundations for funding totaling $375,000.
• Appropriation of $1,000,000 in FY22 State Budget.

Due to the uncertainty of funding beyond FY21 and the associated difficulty of attracting candidates for such a short time period, the Board of Directors elected to review and award FY21 grants without staff assistance. All of the initial grant work was completed through board committees and full board meetings. Accordingly, the entire $500,000 FY21 appropriation is going toward grants and training of grantee organizations. No other expenses will be incurred.

The board agendas and meeting notes can be found at www.njcivicinfo.org.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESS

Much of 2020 was spent on administrative issues related to the creation of the Consortium. From our first board meeting in March 2020, we held monthly meetings and related committee meetings to establish by-laws, create a conflict of interest policy, open a bank account at Valley Bank, register as a non-profit with the New Jersey Division of Revenue and the Internal Revenue Service, and file for sales tax exemption with the New Jersey Division of Taxation. We also signed a grant agreement with the Office of the Secretary of Higher Education (OSHE), the department through which the Consortium’s state appropriation flows. We were aided by a pro bono attorney in much of this work.

One of our first actions was to designate Montclair State University as host university for the Consortium. We made this decision based on the background of the Center for Cooperative Media, housed in the School of Communication and Media. The Center has been instrumental to all that we have accomplished over the past year by providing valuable back office support services, graphic design, website design and outreach. Their efforts enabled the Consortium to direct all of its state funding to grantmaking. This has been invaluable since we are an all volunteer organization and board. We wish to thank Stefanie Murray and Joe Amditis from the Center for their hard work and support.

We have established a social media presence with Facebook and Twitter accounts, at facebook.com/njcivicinfo and twitter.com/njcivicinfo. We have used these to promote the work of the Consortium, including our grants process. We also have established a website (www.njcivicinfo.org).

Our board consists of gubernatorial and legislative appointees, along with members appointed by the presidents of our five member universities. These members then appointed four additional board members, with one representing the media sector, one representing the technology sector, and two representing the state at-large. The full board consists of 15 members. The legislation creating the Consortium encourages the board to use these seats to add diversity to the board and also requires the appointments to be bipartisan in nature and not be of state employees. Using these requirements we worked to identify and recruit four board members. Attached in Appendix A is a full list of board members and board classes.

We also elected our inaugural group of officers to lead the board. This includes:

- Chairperson: Christopher J. Daggett
- Vice Chairperson: Maurice Hall
- Secretary: John R.D. Celock
- Treasurer: Molly de Aguiar

Please note that Vice Chairperson Maurice Hall, the appointee from The College of New Jersey, stepped down from the Board of Directors in July 2021 following his appointment as provost of Bennington College in Vermont. His seat on the board will be filled in due course by the president of The College of New Jersey and a new vice chairperson will be elected by the board.

GRANTS PROCESS

For the Consortium’s inaugural round of grants, the board developed guidelines after a statewide virtual listening tour, research and much deliberation by our grants committee. We aimed to address New Jersey’s most pressing civic information needs, inviting applicants to be creative and entrepreneurial. We also aimed to meet the directives of our enabling legislation and the intent of the State Legislature. Above all, our goal was to make sure our guidelines fit the needs of the entire state.

The virtual listening tour touched more than 400 people across the state and was made possible through the help of an outreach consultant retained by support from Free Press, through a grant received from Democracy Fund. This process included a statewide survey that garnered 188 responses and 30 virtual listening sessions that reached every county in New Jersey.

The board wanted to make sure young people were a key part of our outreach program. We hosted a special statewide youth outreach session, which was co-moderated by two high school students.

These sessions and the survey played an important role in shaping our grant guidelines by providing key insights and comments. We learned a lot about the civic information landscape of New Jersey that supplemented previous research efforts across the state. The comments we received covered a wide range of topics, including public health, urban areas, rural communities, news deserts and local government information. Our participants included educators, community advocates, nonprofit leaders, students, local government officials and media leaders.
“Public money should be targeting the most unlikely people to develop and fund the news on their own,” one participant said.

“People need more trust in their news sources and the only way to do that is for those outlets to present information in an unbiased, educated, and unproblematic manner,” another participant shared.

The Consortium would like to thank everyone who participated in these sessions. We could not have developed our grant guidelines without them. We also would like to extend a special thanks to our youth session co-facilitators, Mira Mehta of Westfield High School and Justin Zimmerman of the Union County Academy of Information Technology in Scotch Plains, along with their school leaders, Margaret Dolan, the recently retired Westfield Superintendent of Schools; Mary Asfendis, the principal of Westfield High School; Gwendolyn Ryan, Union County Vo-Tech Superintendent of Schools; and Colleen Gialanella, principal of the Union County Academy of Information Technology.

We used the information gathered from these sessions to develop our three core areas for the inaugural round of grants. Those areas are:

- Community health projects, including those related to the Covid-19 pandemic and its after effects.
- Local government transparency and information
- Growing the journalism pipeline and training

We also invited projects across the realm of our portfolio and encouraged creativity from those looking to apply for grants. During the application process, the Center for Cooperative Media at Montclair State hosted three public information sessions and fielded numerous inquiries about the grant program.

To maximize our $500,000 state appropriation, the board set a $35,000 maximum for each grant. This allowed us to award up to 14 grants.

We received 74 grant applications from around the state, all of which were reviewed by our grants committee. Applications were judged based on the project intent, the goals of each project, and the budgets. We took care to ensure the entire state was represented, that all core grant areas were addressed, that news deserts were filled, and, in particular, that communities of color, immigrant communities and rural communities were represented.

The grants committee and board discussions were lively and intense and the decisions were tough as we had many good applications and a finite pool of funds. At the end of the process, we awarded 14 grants that we believe will address a wide range of local news and information needs in New Jersey.

Our inaugural recipients cover communities across our state. This class includes projects to address information needs of Spanish speaking farm workers in South Jersey, fill news deserts in Salem and Warren Counties, develop journalism training programs for students, increase local government transparency, increase civic awareness for Trenton students, and document the work to solve water quality issues in Newark. Many projects are led by women and people of color, as well as by journalists, non-profit organizations and community leaders.

We are excited that a project in Old Bridge is an outgrowth of an organic community driven group and another project in Blairstown is community driven from the ground up, demonstrating that New Jersey residents are very interested in working together to address their news and information needs.

We are excited that we have programs that provide journalism training and civic education for youth. As an organization that consists of public research universities, we are committed to involving New Jersey’s entire education community in our efforts. Growing New Jersey’s journalism pipeline will help our state going forward.

We have encouraged many of those who did not receive grants in our first round to apply again. There were many unique and exciting projects we were unable to fund that will have a positive impact on our state. There indeed is a strong commitment to growing New Jersey’s local news and information ecosystem and we look forward to nurturing that interest.

The inaugural grantees are:

- Beyond Expectations, with a grant of $33,875.50, will continue its outreach work with young people in Burlington County by launching “be.tv eStudios,” an initiative that provides students with the resources they need to better participate in immersive interactive learning.
- The Blairstown Enhancement Committee, with a grant of $35,000.00, will address the loss of local-news outlets by launching the Greater Blairstown News Project. This effort will provide residents with vital and timely government announcements about public health and safety, and foster greater connection to and awareness of local issues across northwest New Jersey.
- The Bloomfield Information Project, with a grant of $35,000.00, will launch a community-reporter corps pilot program that trains residents in news gathering, writing, and production and provides paid reporting assignments that prioritize the information needs of underserved populations in the surrounding community.
- Cosecha, with a grant of $35,000.00, a New Jersey grassroots organization run by and for Latinx immigrants, will work with Rutgers University to establish Radio Popular, a twice-weekly Spanish-language internet-radio program for the state’s Spanish-speaking immigrant community.
- The Conservatory of Music and Performing Arts Society, with a grant of $35,000.00, will support Let My People Learn-HistorVic Education, a project that helps young people learn more about the workings of local governments and how policies and laws impact their communities.
- The weekly Hammonton Gazette, with a grant of $34,765.00, will make its news coverage more representative of Hammonton’s southern New Jersey community. The paper will offer news articles in Spanish and initiate outreach to seasonal agricultural workers and more permanent members of the local Spanish-speaking community.

- If I Can, You Can Inc., with a grant of $35,000.00, will help revitalize the online neighborhood news franchise TAPinto.net in Salem County, with the goal of sharing news articles across New Jersey towns to create a more sustainable information ecosystem.

- The Newark News and Story Collaborative, with a grant of $35,000.00, will train community members to tell their stories and produce news that fills information gaps in local and national media.

- The Newark Water Coalition, with a grant of $34,930.00, will create Newark Community Voices, a digital media and community organizing training program for Newark youth. The program will produce and distribute multimedia health and environment stories that center Newark community information needs.

- The Facebook group Old Bridge NJ Residents, with a grant of $35,000.00, will create a comprehensive and searchable archive of local government activity spanning more than two decades. The tool will be made available to area residents and journalists.

- The Paterson Alliance, with a grant of $33,000.00, will manage the library-based Paterson Information Hub to provide the community with training in citizen journalism and news production technology. The alliance will also convene local events to assess community information needs.

- The collaborative Stories of Atlantic City, with a grant of $34,982.46, will pilot an initiative to train community members to serve as reporters covering the local city council and planning and education board hearings. The initiative will develop new ways to engage community members in the decision-making processes that impact their lives.

- The hyperlocal Trenton Journal, with a grant of $35,000.00, will train more local contributors to increase the frequency of its editorial output and help change the narrative about what it’s like to live in Trenton.

- Princeton-based health information website VaccinateNJ.com, with a grant of $35,000.00, will add more features to its online resource to help residents statewide — including native Spanish speakers and others in underserved communities — get real-time information about vaccination appointment locations and vaccine availability.

LESSONS LEARNED

Creating a statewide non-profit organization is an educational process as much as it is a management process. We have learned a lot as we have implemented the enabling legislation and created the Consortium. These lessons have given us perspectives that have shaped our work over the past year and going forward.

Shortly after our first board meeting, we shifted our operation entirely online as everything changed with COVID-19 causing the world to shut down. We learned clearly as a state and nation that public health and public information are closely linked. Accordingly, we made public health related projects one of the three core areas for our first round of grants.

The university partnership aspect of the Consortium was also uncharted territory. We learned that we need to encourage our potential grantees to have conversations early with potential university partners to establish relationships. The board played a big role in matching universities with grantees who needed partners, and that will have to be a key consideration of our process going forward. Our member universities were also navigating this process for the first time, and we learned quite a bit about the kind of paperwork that will be required for future grants that directly involve them, particularly in those instances where the university acts as fiscal sponsor. These issues have delayed us in sending five of the grant checks. The need for fiscal sponsorship support for these grantees was unexpected, and the board is looking into how it may be able to better connect future grantees with financial infrastructure.

Additionally, a handful of our grantees in the first round intended to launch entirely new news organizations. Starting a new business is not an easy task and we learned that these grantees need additional support beyond funding to be successful.

LOOKING FORWARD

Building on the enthusiasm across the state following the first round of grant funding this spring, and with the FY22 State appropriation of $1 million, we look forward to starting a second round of grants. Our target is to issue a call for applications at the beginning of October, with a goal of awarding a new round of grants in December/January.

As we plan for the new round, we also will revisit the three core focus areas we used in the first round and determine if they should be changed, updated or replaced. We consider the focus areas a continual work in progress and know that as New Jersey’s information needs evolve, our grant focus areas should adapt.

We have scheduled the three statutorily required annual public hearings for North, Central and South Jersey in September. We view these hearings as an important part of our work, assisting us in reviewing our grant guidelines and making any other changes as needed to our processes. While the overall thrust of our work remains the same, the details of what is needed to grow local news and information will evolve.

We will conduct the 2021 public hearings virtually for the ease of people across the state and in recognition of potential public health issues due to COVID-19. We also will continue outreach to various groups around the state to promote the next round of grants, with a focus on communities from which we did not receive applications during the first round.
Prior to the call for applications, we will determine the amount of money to allocate in the second round and consider if we should move to a rolling grant program to increase our flexibility and responsiveness. We intend to widen geographic and demographic representation in future rounds of grant applications, and are planning to expand outreach to communities statewide to achieve this goal.

Our goal is to use the $1 million state appropriation for grants and other services for our grant recipients, and to secure external financial support for core administrative functions. We view our role as stewards of taxpayer funds, using the grants to invest in the growth of civic information across New Jersey.

Our work with grant recipients does not end when we send a check. We intend to create a cohort program where we will offer grant recipients access to training, experts, and information to help grow their programs. Awarding a grant does not mean success for a program; a cohort approach will enable us to utilize the entire local news and information ecosystem to assist grantees. We also will continue working with faculty and staff of our member universities to engage them in the efforts of the Consortium and to identify new avenues of research and service to grantees.

We are cognizant of the need to engage in continuous outreach across the state about the Consortium, our grant program, and the general issues of local news and information. We will continue to partner with other groups focused on improving the New Jersey news ecosystem. Our host university, Montclair State—through the Center for Cooperative Media—is also highly engaged on these issues.

We are excited about the future of the Consortium. Our inaugural grant recipients have programs that we believe will positively impact the state. We look forward to seeing this impact and to helping them succeed. We also are excited about the level of interest in the Consortium, as evidenced by the number of applications we received in the first round and the continued interest in our organization.

The Consortium is off to a good start, but much remains to be done to address the news and information gaps in our state. We are confident and optimistic about our efforts and where we are headed.

Appendix C
This Grant Agreement (Agreement) is entered into by and between the Office of the Secretary of Higher Education (OSHE), a public agency of the State of New Jersey and The New Jersey Civic Information Consortium (the “Grantee”), a non-profit entity established pursuant to P.L. 2018, 111 C.18A:64-94 (the “NJICIC Law”) with the intent to provide grants that support news and information that benefit the State’s civic life and meet the evolving information needs of New Jersey’s underserved communities.

The purpose of the partnership between OSHE and the Grantee is to strengthen local news coverage, community information, civic technology and civic engagement across New Jersey. Pursuant to this Agreement, OSHE will provide funding to implement goals and strategies for capacity building and increasing enrollment, improving student completion, and reducing financial burdens on students.

I. GRANT AMOUNT

Based on the representations in Grantee’s application and in this Agreement, OSHE awards Grantee a grant in an amount of $500,000 (five hundred thousand dollars) (the “NJICIC Grant”).

II. PROGRAMMATIC RESPONSIBILITY

A. Grantees shall use the funds provided pursuant to this Agreement to support activities related to promoting the NJICIC and/or advance research and innovation in the field of media and technology to better inform the State’s communities to benefit the State’s civic life and evolving information needs. The members of the Consortium are five State public institutions (The College of New Jersey, Montclair State University, New Jersey Institute of Technology, Rowan University, and Rutgers, the State University).

B. Grantee shall use the funds provided pursuant to this memorandum to implement a comprehensive program between November 1, 2020 and June 30, 2021 in compliance with the requirements of the NJCIC Law.

B. All monies expended pursuant to paragraph A of this section must be spent or encumbered by June 30, 2021.

C. The Grantee agrees to attend and participate in activities that may be convened by OSHE in furtherance of the NJCIC. The activities may include, but are not limited to: in-person periodic meetings, webinars, and collaborative events with multiple institutions to examine best practices that can utilized for the sustainability of the NJCIC program.

D. Compliance with Existing Laws
Grantee, agrees to comply with all federal, state, and municipal laws, rules, and regulations in the performance of this Agreement that are generally applicable to the activities in which the Grantee is engaged in the performance of said contracts. These laws and regulations include, but are not limited to the NJCIC Law.

E. Dissemination

1. All public events, activities, curricular materials, press releases, requests for proposals, bid solicitations, and other documents produced with funds provided pursuant to this agreement must state clearly that the project partnership is administered by OSHE and that OSHE is a partner in the project partnership. The only official name to be used in describing the overall program is “The New Jersey Civic Information Consortium” and no other institutional-specific branded name shall be used in official communication about the grant.

2. Content of materials. Subject to any specific requirements that apply to the grant, the Grantee may decide the format and content of project materials that it publishes or arranges to have published.

E. Reporting
1. The Grantee shall provide interim and final reports to OSHE regarding the completion of their programmatic responsibilities as detailed in paragraphs A and B, above.
2. The interim report must show actual grant related expenditures and progress on activities through February 26, 2021 and is due no later than March 15, 2021. The final report is due by August 1, 2021, and will provide information for entire term of this Agreement. The final report must show actual grant related expenditures and progress on activities through June 30, 2021. A template will be provided for these reports.

3. Other requests for information may be made to the Grantee as needed for state reporting requirements.

4. The Grantee shall meet upon request with OSHE to discuss strategies for effectively achieving the programmatic objectives.

III. CONFLICT OF INTEREST

During the term of the Grantee's award from OSHE, the Grantee must not engage in any work, paid or unpaid, that creates an actual or potential conflict of interest with the State. Such work shall include, but is not limited to, directly or indirectly competing with the State in any way, or acting as an officer, director, employee, consultant, stockholder, volunteer, lender, or agent of any business enterprise of the same nature as, or which is in direct competition with, the business in which the State is now engaged or in which the State becomes engaged during the term of Grantee's award from the State, as may be determined by the State in its sole discretion. If the State believes such a conflict exists during the term of this Agreement, the State may ask the Grantee to choose to discontinue the other work or resign employment with the State.

IV. TERM

The term of this Agreement shall be from November 1, 2020 to August 1, 2021, subject to state appropriations.

V. BUDGET

A. The total NCIC grant amount to be made available by OSHE to Grantee under this Agreement is $500,000. The Grantee must submit the budget for grant activities for State fiscal year 2021 utilizing the provided template and have the budget approved by the State prior to expending funds. Any funds received under this grant will not be used to supplant funds normally budgeted for programs or service of the same or similar type.
B. The Grantee may transfer amounts up to $10,000 among its administrative budget line items as required to carry out the purposes of the grant. Transfers exceeding $10,000 towards administrative budget line items require prior approval from OSHE and will be treated as a modification to this Agreement. Any request for a budget modification should be in writing and should include a revised budget.

C. Program Income

Program income shall be defined as gross income earned by Grantee utilizing funds awarded pursuant to this Agreement. Such earnings include, but will not be limited to, income from service fees, sale of commodities, usage or rental fees, and royalties on patents and copyrights.

1. Interest earned of $250 or more in a fiscal year on advance payments of grant funds shall be reported in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Agreement.
2. Unless the Agreement provides otherwise, the Grantee shall have no obligation to OSHE with respect to royalties received as a result of copyrights or patents produced under the Agreement.
3. All other program income earned during the Agreement period shall be added by Grantee to funds received from OSHE under the Agreement and used by Grantee to further eligible program objectives as set forth in the Agreement and the NJCIC Law, if possible; otherwise, said funds are to be returned to OSHE.

D. Grantee’s Monitoring of Program Performance

1. Grantee shall constantly monitor the performance of grant-supported activities to assure that time schedules are met, projected time-bound objectives are accomplished, and other performance goals are achieved pursuant to the terms of this Agreement.
2. Grantee shall inform OSHE in writing of the following types of conditions which affect program objectives and performance as soon as they become known:
   a. Problems, delays, loss of personnel, including previously identified sub-grantees, sub-consultants, or adverse conditions which will materially affect the ability to attain project objectives, prevent the meeting of time schedules and goals, or preclude the attainment of project activities by established time periods. This disclosure shall be accompanied by a statement of the action taken, or contemplated, and any requests for OSHE assistance needed to resolve the situation.
b. Favorable developments or events which enable meeting time schedules and goals sooner than anticipated or that result in the expansion of activities beyond those originally projected.

Section 11.3 Actions by or in the Right of the Consortium
The Consortium shall indemnify an Agent against his or her Expenses in connection with any Proceeding by or in the right of the Consortium to procure a judgment in its favor which involves the Agent by reason of his or her being or having been such Agent, if he or she acted in good faith and in a manner he or she reasonably believed to be in or not opposed to the best interests of the Consortium. However, in such Proceeding no indemnification shall be provided in respect of any claim, issue or matter as to which such Agent shall have been adjudged to be liable for negligence or misconduct, unless and only to the extent that the court, administrative agency, or arbitrator in which such Proceeding was brought shall determine upon application that despite the adjudication of liability, but in view of all circumstances of the case, such Agent is fairly and reasonably entitled to indemnity for such Expenses as the court, administrative agency, or arbitrator shall deem proper.

Section 11.4 Mandatory Indemnification

Section 11.5 Procedure for Effecting Indemnification
Any indemnifications under Section 11.2 or Section 11.3, unless ordered by a court, may be made by the Consortium only as authorized in a specific case upon a determination that indemnification is proper in the circumstances because the Agent met the applicable standard of conduct as set forth in Section 11.2 or Section 11.3. Such determination shall be made (a) by the Board of Directors, acting by a majority vote of a quorum consisting of the Directors who were not parties to or otherwise involved in the Proceeding, or (b) if such a quorum is not obtainable or, even if obtainable, and such quorum of the Board of Directors by a majority vote of the disinterested Directors so directs, by independent legal counsel, in a written opinion, such counsel to be designated by the Board of Directors.

Section 11.6 Advancing Expenses
Expenses incurred by an Agent in connection with a Proceeding may be paid by the Consortium in advance of the final disposition of the Proceeding if authorized in the manner provided in Section 11.5 upon receipt of an undertaking by or on behalf of the Agent to repay such amount unless it shall ultimately be determined that he is entitled to be indemnified as provided in this Article.

Section 11.7 Scope of Bylaws
The indemnification provided by this Article 11, (a) shall apply to the Agent and the legal representative or representatives of the Agent and (b) shall not exclude any other rights to which an Agent may be entitled under the Bylaws of the Consortium or by agreement or otherwise.

Section 11.8 Insurance
The Board may adopt a resolution authorizing the purchase and maintenance of insurance on behalf of any Agent, against any liability asserted against or incurred by any Agent in such capacity or

Appendix E
The New Jersey Civic Information Consortium
Conflict of Interest Policy
Adopted December 17, 2020

Article I.
Purpose

The purpose of the conflict of interest policy is to protect the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium’s (Consortium) interest when it is contemplating entering into a transaction or arrangement that might benefit the private interest of an officer or director of the Consortium or might result in a possible excess benefit transaction. This policy is intended to supplement but not replace any applicable state and federal laws governing conflict of interest applicable to nonprofit and charitable organizations.

Article II.
Definitions

1. Interested Person

Any director, principal officer, or member of a committee with governing board delegated powers, who has a direct or indirect financial interest, as defined below, is an interested person.

2. Financial Interest

A person has a financial interest if the person has, directly or indirectly, through business, investment, or family:

a. An ownership or investment interest in any entity with which the Consortium has a transaction or arrangement,

b. A compensation arrangement with the Consortium or with any entity or individual with which the Consortium has a transaction or arrangement, or

c. A potential ownership or investment interest in, or compensation arrangement with, any entity or individual with which the Consortium is negotiating a transaction or arrangement.

Compensation includes direct and indirect remuneration as well as gifts or favors that are not insubstantial.

A financial interest is not necessarily a conflict of interest. Under Article III, Section 2, a person who has a financial interest may have a conflict of interest only if the appropriate governing board or committee decides that a conflict of interest exists.
Article III.
Procedures

1. Duty to Disclose

In connection with any actual or possible conflict of interest, an interested person must disclose the existence of the financial interest and be given the opportunity to disclose all material facts to the directors and members of committees with governing board delegated powers considering the proposed transaction or arrangement.

2. Determining Whether a Conflict of Interest Exists

After disclosure of the financial interest and all material facts, and after any discussion with the interested person, he/she shall leave the governing board or committee meeting while the determination of a conflict of interest is discussed and voted upon. The remaining board or committee members shall decide if a conflict of interest exists.

3. Procedures for Addressing the Conflict of Interest

   a. An interested person may make a presentation at the governing board or committee meeting, but after the presentation, he/she shall leave the meeting during the discussion of, and the vote on, the transaction or arrangement involving the possible conflict of interest.

   b. The chairperson of the governing board or committee shall, if appropriate, appoint a disinterested person or committee to investigate alternatives to the proposed transaction or arrangement.

   c. After exercising due diligence, the governing board or committee shall determine whether the Consortium can obtain with reasonable efforts a more advantageous transaction or arrangement from a person or entity that would not give rise to a conflict of interest.

   d. If a more advantageous transaction or arrangement isn’t reasonably possible under circumstances not producing a conflict of interest, the governing board or committee shall determine by a majority vote of the disinterested directors whether the transaction or arrangement is in the Consortium’s best interest, for its own benefit, and whether it is fair and reasonable. In conformity with the above determination it shall make its decision as to whether to enter into the transaction or arrangement.

4. Violations of the Conflicts of Interest Policy

   a. If the governing board or committee has reasonable cause to believe a member has failed to disclose actual or possible conflicts of interest, it shall inform the member of the basis for such belief and afford the member an opportunity to explain the alleged failure to disclose.
b. If, after hearing the member's response and after making further investigation as warranted by the circumstances, the governing board or committee determines the member has failed to disclose an actual or possible conflict of interest, it shall take appropriate disciplinary and corrective action.

Article IV.
Records of Proceedings

The minutes of the governing board and all committees with board delegated powers shall contain:

a. The names of the persons who disclosed or otherwise were found to have a financial interest in connection with an actual or possible conflict of interest, the nature of the financial interest, any action taken to determine whether a conflict of interest was present, and the governing board’s or committee’s decision as to whether a conflict of interest in fact existed.

b. The names of the persons who were present for discussion and votes relating to the transaction or arrangement, the content of the discussion, including any alternatives to the proposed transaction or arrangement, and a record of any votes taken in connection with the proceedings.

Article V.
Compensation

a. A voting member of the governing board who receives compensation, directly or indirectly, from the Consortium for services is precluded from voting on matters pertaining to that member’s compensation.

b. A voting member of any committee whose jurisdiction includes compensation matters and who receives compensation, directly or indirectly, from the Consortium for services is precluded from voting on matters pertaining to that members’ compensation.

c. No voting member of the governing board or any committee whose jurisdiction includes compensation matters and who receives compensation, directly or indirectly, from the Consortium, either individually or collectively, is prohibited from providing information to any committee regarding compensation.

Article VI.
Annual Statements

Each director, principal officer and member of a committee with governing board delegated powers shall annually sign a statement which affirms such person:

a. Has received a copy of the conflicts of interest policy,

b. Has read and understands the policy,
c. Has agreed to comply with the policy, and

d. Understands the Consortium is charitable and in order to maintain its federal tax exemption it must engage primarily in activities which accomplish one or more of its tax-exempt purposes.

Article VII.
Periodic Reviews

To ensure the Consortium operates in a manner consistent with charitable purposes and doesn’t engage in activities that could jeopardize its tax-exempt status, periodic reviews shall be conducted. The periodic reviews shall, at a minimum, include the following subjects:

a. Whether compensation arrangements and benefits are reasonable, based on competent survey information, and the result of arm’s length bargaining.

b. Whether partnerships, joint ventures, and arrangements with management organizations conform to the Consortium’s written policies, are properly recorded, reflect reasonable investment or payments for goods and services, further charitable purposes and don’t result in inurement, impermissible private benefit, or in an excess benefit transaction.

Article VIII.
Use of Outside Experts

When conducting the periodic reviews as provided for in Article VII, the Consortium may, but need not, use outside advisors. If outside experts are used, their use shall not relieve the governing board of its responsibility for ensuring periodic reviews are conducted.

Groundbreaking New Jersey Initiative Announces Inaugural Series of Grants to Fund Local News and Information

MONTCLAIR, NJ — On Thursday, the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium announced its inaugural round of grants, a milestone in the years-long effort by residents, journalists and local organizations to invest public funding to foster more informed communities.

The Consortium has awarded 14 news-and-information initiatives with grants of up to $35,000. Grant recipients come from every part of New Jersey; their work focuses on diversifying journalism, improving government transparency and providing community-health information, among other issues.

The Consortium represents a first-of-its-kind state model for public funding to support quality local journalism, promising media startups and other efforts meant to better inform people and promote civic engagement. The state of New Jersey provided $500,000 in funding for FY2021.

In 2017, a broad coalition of universities, journalists, advocates, lawmakers and state residents began working together to create the Civic Information Consortium. With State support, the Consortium will continue to provide grants for local journalism and civic technology projects, with an emphasis on efforts designed to better serve low-income communities, communities of color, immigrants and rural residents.

“Thanks to the bipartisan foresight of the legislature and governor, New Jersey has set a national precedent for public funding to inform and engage local communities through the groundbreaking legislation that created the Consortium in 2018,” said Civic Information Board Chair Christopher J. Daggett. “Today’s announcement marks a new beginning for civic information in New Jersey. These grants are funding 14 innovative projects aimed at bolstering access to local news and information, increasing access to community health and training more people in journalism. We received 74 applications this round, from almost every county in New Jersey, which shows a tremendous interest in the Consortium’s mission. We look forward to working with these grantees and thank everyone who applied for this inaugural round of grants.”

The inaugural class of grantees:

- Beyond Expectations will continue its outreach work with young people in Burlington County by launching “be.tv eStudios,” an initiative that provides students with the resources they need to better participate in immersive interactive learning.
- The Blairstown Enhancement Committee will address the loss of local-news outlets by launching the Greater Blairstown News Project. This effort will provide residents with vital and timely government announcements about public health and safety, and foster greater connection to and awareness of local issues across northwest New Jersey.
- The Bloomfield Information Project will launch a community-reporter corps pilot program that trains residents in news gathering, writing, and production and provides paid reporting assignments that prioritize the information needs of underserved populations in the surrounding community.
- Cosecha, a New Jersey grassroots organization run by and for Latinx immigrants, will work with Rutgers University to establish Radio Popular, a twice-weekly Spanish-language internet-radio program for the state’s Spanish-speaking immigrant community.
- The Conservatory of Music and Performing Arts Society will support Let My People Learn-HistorVic Education, a project that helps young people learn more about the workings of local governments and how policies and laws impact their communities.
- The weekly Hammonton Gazette will make its news coverage more representative of Hammonton’s southern New Jersey community. The paper will offer news articles in Spanish and initiate outreach to seasonal agricultural workers and more permanent members of the local Spanish-speaking community.

- If I Can, You Can Inc. will help revitalize the online neighborhood news franchise TapInto.net in Salem County with the goal of sharing news articles across New Jersey towns to create a more sustainable information ecosystem.

- The Newark News and Story Collaborative will train community members to tell their stories and produce news that fills information gaps in local and national media.

- The Newark Water Coalition will create Newark Community Voices, a digital-media and community-organizing training program for Newark youth. The program will produce and distribute multimedia health and environment stories that center Newark community-information needs.

- The Facebook group Old Bridge NJ Residents will create a comprehensive and searchable archive of local-government activity spanning more than two decades. The tool will be made available to area residents and journalists.

- The Paterson Alliance will manage the library-based Paterson Information Hub to provide the community with training in citizen journalism and news-production technology. The alliance will also convene local events to assess community-information needs.

- The collaborative Stories of Atlantic City project will pilot an initiative to train community members to serve as reporters covering the local city council and planning and educational board hearings. The initiative will develop new ways to engage community members in the decision-making processes that impact their lives.

- The hyperlocal Trenton Journal will train more local contributors to increase the frequency of its editorial output and help change the narrative about what it’s like to live in Trenton.

- Princeton-based health-information website VaccinateNJ.com will add more features to its online resource to help residents statewide — including native Spanish speakers and others in underserved communities — get real-time information about vaccination appointment locations and vaccine availability.

Created by the state of New Jersey in 2018, the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium is an independent, nonprofit organization that funds initiatives to benefit the State’s civic life and meet the evolving information needs of New Jersey’s communities. The Consortium has five member universities, The College of New Jersey, Rutgers University, Rowan University, New Jersey Institute of Technology and, acting as the host university, Montclair State University. A first-in-the-nation project, the Consortium builds off the foundation laid by public media in the United States, and reimagines how public funding can be used to address the growing problem of news deserts and misinformation, and support more informed communities.

New Jersey Civic Information Consortium project grantmaking guidelines

Updated June 3, 2021

The New Jersey Civic Information Consortium, a first in the nation initiative to grow access to local news and information, is now accepting applications for its inaugural round of grant funding. The Consortium was created by the State of New Jersey in 2018 to grow access to civic information statewide and spark innovative media projects in communities lacking access to news and information.

The Consortium will consider applications from all parts of the state, but is especially interested in proposals that focus on better serving communities of color, immigrant communities and rural communities.

The Consortium is focusing on three key areas for these initial grants, based on the following current pressing information needs of New Jerseyans:

- News and information that promotes community health, including information surrounding the ongoing impact of COVID-19 on our communities.
- Reporting and civic technology projects that make government information more accessible and hold public officials accountable.
- Diversifying New Jersey’s journalism pipeline, media education and journalism/storytelling training in communities that lack trusted news sources and/or where coverage is one-dimensional and doesn’t meet community needs.

Eligibility

The state law forming the Consortium requires that groups receiving grants work in partnership with a faculty member, graduate student or program at one of the Consortium's member universities. You do not need to have a partnership formed when applying for a grant. The Consortium can connect you with an interested faculty member, graduate student or program at a member university. The member universities are Montclair State University, Rutgers University, the New Jersey Institute of Technology, Rowan University and The College of New Jersey.

Please note in your application if you have a partner or will need one. Questions about potential partnerships can be directed to the Consortium at info@njcivicinfo.org. Decisions about university partnerships are made by the member universities. Grant applicants and member universities will finalize details of a partnership. In accordance with state law, member universities have to contribute a 10-percent match of the grant. This can be in the form of administrative support, advisory services, or other in-kind support.

The Consortium is committed to making sure grant recipients can find a university contact to talk with about a potential partnership.
The Consortium, the member universities and the State of New Jersey will not hold any financial or ownership stake in any project and cannot exercise editorial control over any project approved and funded by the Consortium.

Grants

Grants in the first round will be capped at $35,000. A Consortium grant is meant as seed money or project funding and not as an ongoing source of funding for an organization.

Process and deadline

Please complete the application at www.njcivicinfo.org/grants (http://www.njcivicinfo.org/grants) by 11:59PM eastern time on Wednesday, March 31, 2021. Applications will be screened by a panel consisting of Consortium board members. This panel may contact you for follow-up information. Final decisions will be made the Consortium Board of Directors.

You can read more below about the consortium’s vision and guiding principles for grantmaking.

Vision

New Jersey residents have access to accurate, useful, and engaging local news and information, allowing them to better participate in civic life and create thriving, healthy communities.

Guiding principles

In order to achieve this vision, the Civic Information Consortium will seek to support ideas and projects that do the following:

Perform a public service: Public funding for media in the United States historically has focused on supporting public-service news and information that fills gaps left by commercial media. The ongoing local news crisis in New Jersey has widened these gaps and left many communities without access to important information about where they live. Our grantmaking will continue the rich legacy of public funding for media by supporting news and information that performs a public service and supports civic engagement in media-deficient communities.
Center community information needs: People need access to a variety of news and information in order to have their basic needs met, to participate in their community and civic life, and to thrive and fully realize their potential. Too often, though, local media systems fail to meet people's information needs – such as, reporting that demonstrates a problem without offering actionable solutions, the lack of information sources in languages other than English, or disseminating news in ways that don’t actually reach those who can most benefit. The information needs of New Jersey residents are at the center of our work, and we will dedicate resources to projects that allow greater access to news and information that improve people’s lives.

Support media that is diverse, equitable, and inclusive: A media system that does not reflect and lift up the rich racial, ethnic, and class diversity of New Jersey cannot serve it adequately. This is true for both the people who make up these institutions, as well as the stories they tell and information they prioritize. The Civic Information Consortium believes it is fundamental to support a more diverse, equitable, and inclusive media system in order to create more informed and engaged communities and build a future generation of media makers that look and sound like New Jersey.

Promote media by, with, and for: It is essential that people can participate and lead in the creation of media. Listening, engagement, collaboration, and community ownership are essential priorities for the Consortium, and we will seek to support projects that democratize the journalistic and media-making process, promote equitable collaboration, center community participation and needs, and build the capacity for everyday people to shape what local news looks like.

Provide training and education: Media is something we all consume, but doing so with rampant disinformation available across platforms has promoted distrust in community institutions. And historically, the privilege of creating media has not been available to people, of all backgrounds, unless they have the resources to do so. Better understanding how media works and creating it go hand in hand. Educating people how to discern fact from fiction, responsibly consume media, and tell their own stories with impact is critical in order to strengthen news and information at the community level.

Strengthen networks and infrastructure: No single outlet or project alone will be able to wholesale improve access to local news and information around New Jersey. Many conditions are required to create more informed communities and sustainable local media across the state; one of those is the ability to build and strengthen the overall ecosystem of how people access news and information. Efforts that build capacity, promote learning and cross-sector collaboration, and provide essential services are necessary to support those performing the essential functions of journalism and media-making.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

Who is eligible to apply for funding?

The Civic Information Consortium provides grants for initiatives to benefit the State's civic life and meet the evolving information needs of New Jersey's communities. All grantees must have evidence of a collaboration between at least one member of the faculty or graduate student of a consortium member university and at least one local community organization, media organization, or technology-based organization.

Funding can only be provided to nonprofit organizations with 501(c)(3) status. If your organization does not have 501(c)(3) status, then the partner university can act as the fiscal agent.

Do I have to have a university partner to initially pitch a project?

You do not need a university partner to apply for a grant from the Consortium, but you will need one to receive a grant. If you do not have a university partner we will work to connect you with an interested faculty member or graduate student at one of the five member universities. The universities make their own decisions on whether or not to work with a project.

What role does the university partner play?

The role of the university partner is up to you and your university partner to develop. The role can be one of an advisor or consulting resource that you can tap for advice and guidance. The role could be one of a more hands on manager or resource to provide strategic direction. The role can also be to provide administrative support. Preferably we would like to see the university partner’s role be more than administrative support to include some sort of advisory role, but the specific role is to be determined by you and the partner.
Under the state law creating the Consortium, university partners provide a 10 percent match towards the project. This can be additional funding or an in-kind contribution. This match can come in the form of back office support, research, staffing, student support or more. This can also be in the form of time provided by a faculty member or graduate student. This can be determined between the grantee and the university partner.

When will I hear back from you about the status of my application?

The deadline to apply is 11:59 p.m. on Wednesday, March 31. The review process will start after the application due date and we hope to make decisions later this spring. We may reach out to you during the review process with any questions.

Who should fill out the application? Do you need one application per project?

The application should be completed by the project manager or leader, ideally a member of the project team who is the best point of contact. Applications should be limited to one per project.

What is the grant period?

The grant period is for up to one year of application approval, and projects should be completed during this time period. Grantees are expected to be in communication with the Consortium to provide updates on their activities and anticipated timeline. The Consortium will work with grantees to develop a timeline for updates during the grant period.

Will I have to file a report after the grant period ends?

Yes, you will need to submit a report to the Consortium after the grant period ends. The Consortium will work with grantees to determine appropriate documentation for your project.

How will I reference the source of this money in any publication?

To name how your grant is funded, you can say something along the lines of: “This project is funded by a grant from the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium, an independent nonprofit organization that received public funding to support quality local journalism, promising media startups and other efforts meant to better inform people.”
How detailed of a budget do you need?

We’d like to know how you plan on spending the grant, but we understand there may be unexpected costs. So include what you anticipate the money being spent on, which could include how the money will be split among project partners, staffing, payment of freelancers or community members, events, and any overhead costs.

What can I use the money for?

The money can be used for project costs such as back office support, research, staffing, student support, etc. We don’t need to know the exact details, but we need an estimated budget and how the money is shared with partners.

What if we need more than the maximum amount allowed to do our project?

Unfortunately, at this time we can’t provide additional funding to projects beyond their grant. We know these initial grants may not be able to cover everything you intend to do, so we encourage you to be intentional about how you are budgeting for this project. We’ll have future opportunities to apply for grants, and we’d encourage those who received initial funding to continue to apply for more funding at that time.

What if we don’t spend all the money?

Money awarded by the Civic Information Consortium should be used to support the project you apply for. If you haven’t spent all the funds awarded, we’ll work with you to extend the timeline of your project or find other ways that the funds can be used to achieve the outcomes of your project.

How should the money be split between entities? Does it have to be split in any certain ways?

Nope! That’ll have to be determined by the collaborators on the project.

What paperwork will you need from me to disburse the grant?

Proof of IRS nonprofit status or that you intend to use the collaborating university as the fiscal agent.

What if our project runs into problems after it starts and we need to change its focus?
Things change, and we will work with grantees in case any major shifts in focus occur. We are investing in your project and project partners, so we’re confident that you’ll be able to do amazing work, even if it looks a little different from what you originally pitched.

Does state money mean state control?

No. While we receive public funding, we are an independent nonprofit overseen by a board of directors. The state law creating the Consortium specifically states that the State of New Jersey, the Consortium and the member universities do not have editorial control or any ownership stake in any project funded.

Can an organization submit multiple distinct projects for consideration?

Yes. You can submit an application for any project that you believe would meet the criteria to receive a grant.

What if you haven’t answered my question in these FAQs?

Let us know! We know we haven’t anticipated everything. Email info@njcivicinfo.org. You can also join one of our upcoming informational sessions with Consortium board members. “Are You Informed NJ?” is a public-engagement campaign hosted and run by Social Impact Studios in 2020/21 on behalf of NJ Civic Information Consortium with support from Free Press Action Fund.

The goal of the campaign is to engage with people across the state to strengthen and reimagine how New Jersey gets quality news & information at the local level by:

- Hearing about their experiences with local news & information
- Finding gaps and guiding funding for the NJCIC
- Gathering recommendations and ideas from the grassroots level
- Raising awareness to bolster civic engagement & participation in NJCIC & Free Press

Industry-standard sample size for 8.8 million with 95% confidence & 5% Error Margin = 385
SUMMARY ANALYSIS & EVALUATION

We set an ambitious goal to reach 1000 people in NJ. We set our sights on hearing from someone in every zip code plus broad-based engagement as an approach to hitting that number. While we reached more than 10k NJ residents through all outreach channels and directly engaged more than 400 people across the state in every county, our zip code coverage has held steady at about 20%.

We found that Zoom Listening Sessions had small turnout, but high-quality participation. Given the pandemic and Zoom fatigue, it was not surprising that we saw more direct engagement through the survey, which could be taken at any time, was more private, and required less of a time commitment.

Overall, we gathered the information that we set out to find and engaged new people in the issue of local news & information in New Jersey. We heard enough common themes from wide-ranging experiences, that we believe we can represent a solid cross-section of people’s connection to local information and civic engagement. We would still like to get to more zip codes and diverse voices, though. Toward that end, we would like to propose the following as a follow-up to this project:

- Create a simplified survey that takes even less time to take
- Run that new survey through 2021 to reach more zip codes & representation of 2020 NJ Census Data
- Social Impact Studios will host the survey, promote it, and pull data from it monthly throughout 2021 at no additional cost.

What does 'civic information' mean to you?

"I think that it means being a responsible person by maintaining awareness of the things that are going on around you. When you are a more engaged person, you can spread awareness about the things that matter to your community."

"Factual, actionable, accessible to all both in language used and channel of distribution."

#1 local source of news & information?
Times Press website NJ.com newspaper Star Ledger Tap Nextdoor TapInto Record Local media Facebook Borough website Patch Daily town groups News New Brunswick Today nj.com Trenton None channel Social media
I feel like we have a lot of local online platforms keeping us updated, so I haven't really felt much of an impact. I do miss the presence and importance of the Star Ledger - I feel their disappearance more-or-less from Newark was a tough blow to our local news, but that has been filled in by so many other online sources.

Politicians and others are not under any scrutiny.
Public money should be targeting the most unlikely people to develop and fund the news on their own.

The Top Common Themes
- Dispersed information across so many channels is making it hard to manage information.
- Municipal websites aren’t great. People feel they have to be very proactive to seek out and navigate information locally.
- One size will not fit all. What people need in a commuter community is going to be very different than what they need in a close-knit localized community.
- Paywalls came up frequently as a barrier to news & information.

“What we heard about Personal Experience with local news & information

“It’s very difficult to find local news anywhere but social media. There are no longer local newspapers or radio stations.”
Attendees share their own Perspectives on the news & info eco-system, culture & habits

The Top Common Themes

● People are very concerned about bias, specifically in local news & information sources.

● It is often up to a dedicated “champion of information” to take on the stewardship to get information out there.

● In almost every session, people expressed the need to educate the public about the role of government and nature of civic engagement.

● Many people said that there was a silver-lining of the pandemic in Zoom public meetings that they wouldn’t have normally been able to attend.

“People need more trust in their news sources and the only way to do that is for those outlets to present information in an unbiased, educated, and unproblematic manner.”

Recommendations & Advice for the Consortium to fill gaps and guide funding

The Top Common Themes

● Many people in different communities suggested that the funds be used on centralized infrastructure first.

● Young journalists need to be trained and there needs to be a viable career path for them.

● Media literacy should be a top priority. Many people throughout the sessions expressed concern about a disconnect between what’s happening locally and what people think is happening based on hearsay.

● Fund the news deserts that have the most people who have the least access.

“If the legacy news & information sources don’t run the stories written by young or community-member journalists, then the effort to recruit them is totally wasted.”

We heard a lot of interesting and surprising Inspired Ideas

The Top Common Themes

● Create a vetted, coordinated, statewide clearinghouse for access to local news & information in one place. And/or “Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval for Media”

● Develop training programs on how to be an effective “community journalist”/ambassador.

● Use technology to gamify/dashboard/push notification information so it can be really interactive, including alternative currency for funding.

● Support entrepreneurial ventures by offering sustainability workshops on running media outlets.

● Leverage libraries as trusted hubs of local info

“If I could create a new local source of news & information I think it would be great to support the use of technology to create unobtrusive digital kiosks of information that could be somewhere centrally located where people could park their car and go get the latest information off of a touchscreen.”

TAKE-AWAYS & RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ACTION/FUNDING

● People are seeking a reliable infrastructure for local news & information that is organized and stewarded by a trusted authority. This isn’t necessarily in the form of curated content; instead, what elevated to the top was a desire for some form of standard, unbiased, and sustainable infrastructure. People want to have choices and to discern for themselves how relevant the content is for them personally. But they want that to be easily accessed, trusted, and actionable in one place. Projects that elevate unbiased practices; explore viable delivery models; and/or seed centralized infrastructure may help address this resounding need.

● There was a common concern about the lack of understanding of the role that news & information plays in civic engagement. This was less about media literacy than it was about people being fully educated, informed, and activated for democratic participation. Projects that include civic education and practices; decision-maker transparency and accountability; and/or social enterprise models for media business may provide a way to address this concern.

● Now is the moment to leverage the awareness raised. The people who participated at all levels were eager to voice their opinion, but also eager to be part of a solution. We strongly recommend dedicated follow-up outreach to engage them directly. Projects that support outreach and continued sharing can amplify your own ongoing efforts to engage people across the state - especially if they are coordinated.

Groundbreaking New Jersey Initiative Announces Inaugural Series of Grants to Fund Local News and Information

MONTCLAIR, NJ — On Thursday, the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium announced its inaugural round of grants, a milestone in the years-long effort by residents, journalists and local organizations to invest public funding to foster more informed communities.

The Consortium has awarded 14 news-and-information initiatives with grants of up to $35,000. Grant recipients come from every part of New Jersey; their work focuses on diversifying journalism, improving government transparency and providing community-health information, among other issues.

The Consortium represents a first-of-its-kind state model for public funding to support quality local journalism, promising media startups and other efforts meant to better inform people and promote civic engagement. The state of New Jersey provided $500,000 in funding for FY2021.

In 2017, a broad coalition of universities, journalists, advocates, lawmakers and state residents began working together to create the Civic Information Consortium. With State support, the Consortium will continue to provide grants for local journalism and civic technology projects, with an emphasis on efforts designed to better serve low-income communities, communities of color, immigrants and rural residents.

“Thanks to the bipartisan foresight of the legislature and governor, New Jersey has set a national precedent for public funding to inform and engage local communities through the groundbreaking legislation that created the Consortium in 2018,” said Civic Information Board Chair Christopher J. Daggett. “Today’s announcement marks a new beginning for civic information in New Jersey. These grants are funding 14 innovative projects aimed at bolstering access to local news and information, increasing access to community health and training more people in journalism. We received 74 applications this round, from almost every county in New Jersey, which shows a tremendous interest in the Consortium’s mission. We look forward to working with these grantees and thank everyone who applied for this inaugural round of grants.”

The inaugural class of grantees:

- Beyond Expectations will continue its outreach work with young people in Burlington County by launching “be.tv eStudios,” an initiative that provides students with the resources they need to better participate in immersive interactive learning.

- The Blairstown Enhancement Committee will address the loss of local-news outlets by launching the Greater Blairstown News Project. This effort will provide residents with vital and timely government announcements about public health and safety, and foster greater connection to and awareness of local issues across northwest New Jersey.

- The Bloomfield Information Project will launch a community-reporter corps pilot program that trains residents in news gathering, writing, and production and provides paid reporting assignments that prioritize the information needs of underserved populations in the surrounding community.

- Cosecha, a New Jersey grassroots organization run by and for Latinx immigrants, will work with Rutgers University to establish Radio Popular, a twice-weekly Spanish-language internet-radio program for the state’s Spanish-speaking immigrant community.

- The Conservatory of Music and Performing Arts Society will support Let My People Learn-HistorVic Education, a project that helps young people learn more about the workings of local governments and how policies and laws impact their communities.

- The weekly Hammonton Gazette will make its news coverage more representative of Hammonton’s southern New Jersey community. The paper will offer news articles in Spanish and initiate outreach to seasonal agricultural workers and more permanent members of the local Spanish-speaking community.

- If I Can, You Can Inc. will help revitalize the online neighborhood news franchise TapInto.net in Salem County with the goal of sharing news articles across New Jersey towns to create a more sustainable information ecosystem.
- The Newark News and Story Collaborative will train community members to tell their stories and produce news that fills information gaps in local and national media.
- The Newark Water Coalition will create Newark Community Voices, a digital-media and community-organizing training program for Newark youth. The program will produce and distribute multimedia health and environment stories that center Newark community-information needs.
- The Facebook group Old Bridge NJ Residents will create a comprehensive and searchable archive of local-government activity spanning more than two decades. The tool will be made available to area residents and journalists.
- The Paterson Alliance will manage the library-based Paterson Information Hub to provide the community with training in citizen journalism and news-production technology. The alliance will also convene local events to assess community-information needs.
- The collaborative Stories of Atlantic City project will pilot an initiative to train community members to serve as reporters covering the local city council and planning and educational board hearings. The initiative will develop new ways to engage community members in the decision-making processes that impact their lives.
- The hyperlocal Trenton Journal will train more local contributors to increase the frequency of its editorial output and help change the narrative about what it’s like to live in Trenton.
- Princeton-based health-information website VaccinateNJ.com will add more features to its online resource to help residents statewide — including native Spanish speakers and others in underserved communities — get real-time information about vaccination appointment locations and vaccine availability.

Created by the state of New Jersey in 2018, the New Jersey Civic Information Consortium is an independent, nonprofit organization that funds initiatives to benefit the State’s civic life and meet the evolving information needs of New Jersey’s communities. The Consortium has five member universities, The College of New Jersey, Rutgers University, Rowan University, New Jersey Institute of Technology and, acting as the host university, Montclair State University. A first-in-the-nation project, the Consortium builds off the foundation laid by public media in the United States, and reimagines how public funding can be used to address the growing problem of news deserts and misinformation, and support more informed communities.
